

The Creation of Rainbows

By Ethan Tsoi

Age 7

A long time ago, there was a short rainfall. The raindrops bounced happily on the streets and had a lot of fun. They played around until the cheery, bright sun rose. The sun was trying to come up with an idea that would make the sky more colorful. When he saw the raindrops, a perfect idea popped into his head.

He gathered up all the raindrops and put them in a big pot. He then mixed in colored stones. The colors were: red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet. After that, the sun let the pot boil until everything melted. He made the colors into the shape of an arch, to resemble him.

After every rainfall, if the sun came out, he would repeat the same process and make the same beautiful rainbow.
