Once upon a time there was a kid, who was 17 years old. His name was John. He had a sister, who was 18 years old and a brother who was 12 years old. His brother's name is Nick and his sister's name is Ashley. One day, they got a clue to a big treasure. It said to find the biggest library, where there will be a book with a green sword on it. They had to get the book and read it; they will find a great treasure. They decided to go on a hunt.

On the way to the library they also found two bad guys, who got the same clue and wanted the treasure. They all got to the same place, where there were 146 libraries. The libraries were almost the same size. The bad guys made it too and they were in a big hurry. While Ashley measured the libraries, she found a person who told her which is the biggest one. Ashley told the others and they entered the library. The place looked scary. But finally they found the real book and got a fake one to trick the bad guys. The book was glowing. John read the real book. It said the treasure is in the Temple of The Sky. They went there, and then found the treasure. They got out then they saw the bad guys. Nick called the police and the police caught the bad guys.

John, Nick and Ashley donated some of the treasure to hospitals to help sick people, and donated some to the poor so the poor will have food to eat and get good education to get a life. They also donated some of the treasure to the government to help our county to get stronger. Of course they kept some for themselves to get a very nice vacation.
